

Interior design Inside stories

Burghley bed

The latest design from family-run, Norfolk-based Wrought Iron & Brass Bed Co is to be unveiled on the company's stand at Burghley Horse Trials next month (September 1–4). Anne is the first upholstered bed in the collection and is covered in Linwood's Tally Ho fabric as a special edition. Each of the 10 beds will come with a numbered nameplate and will cost £4,295 in a king size (01485 542516; www.wroughtironandbrassbed.co.uk)

Light the way

A new player in the market for wall lighting is the British design company BOSCO London, which has launched a collection of wall lights made from sustainably sourced South African antelope horn. From gemsbuck and springbok via kudu and impala, each light is handmade in the UK and 10% of profits are returned to the communities that source the horn. Prices start from £1,600 a pair (020-7736 8498; www.boscolondon.com)

Child's play

The long-established Monogrammed Linen Shop on London's Walton Street, SW3, is known for hand-embroidering initials onto its array of French-made linen and nightwear, but it will also reproduce a child's drawing on an Egyptian cotton pillowcase. Artwork can be emailed direct to the shop and prices vary according to the design, but it quotes £450 for the one pictured (020-7589 4033; www.monogrammedlinenshop.com)

Don't miss...

History in the making Don't miss our next curated tour of the Design Centre, Chelsea Harbour, SW10, as part of Focus/16, the centre's annual week of showroom openings, talks and seminars. Taking place on Thursday, September 22, the theme is 'History in the Making' and guests will get a behind-the-scenes look into designs that have a story to tell and still embody the best craftsmanship of their time. This will be followed by a Champagne tea with COUNTRY LIFE's Editor, Mark Hedges. Tickets cost £20: to book, telephone 020-7225 9166

Curtain up

The latest release from the Fermoie Studio (Made in Britain, September 4, 2014) is Calimanco, which launches next month in nine colours across the company's colour families. The unusual pattern is printed on a new, finer base cloth, using a special print technique created by the Wiltshire-based company. Woven from a fine cotton-and-linen mix, it's ideal for curtains and upholstery (01672 513723; www.fermoie.com)

Poodle parlour

Kitchen and interior designer Edmondson Interiors has a novel way of tackling that post-walk muddy paws problem—it's designed a utility room that comes with its own dog-hosing corner. Clients can choose between open and closed areas and floor tiles are porcelain, which is scratch resistant, making them practical for cleaning. When the shower isn't in use, a dog basket can be fitted into the space (www.edmondsoninteriors.co.uk; 01580 212934) 🐾
